Brief overview of the degree programme and study grants

The Second Cycle Degree/Master Programme in Italian Studies, European Literary Cultures, Linguistics is a 2-year (120 ECTS credits) free access Degree Programme with assessment of personal competencies and skills. It offers four curricula: Italianistica (in Italian), Culture Letterarie Europee (Erasmus Mundus programme), Scienze linguistiche (in Italian) and the international curriculum in Italian Studies (in English).

The international curriculum in “Italian Studies” (ITS) is conceived as an interdisciplinary educational path, combining the knowledge of the Italian culture with the knowledge of European and non-European cultural traditions and providing the theoretical, critical and methodological instruments to work in national and international cultural contexts.

The teaching language is mainly English, but students will also follow advanced teachings provided in Italian language during their second year.

Candidates are expected to be familiar with categories, instruments and languages of research in the field of humanities. The ability to analyze and contextualize texts, sources and different aspects of Italian culture is also required. Candidates must have an upper/intermediate proficiency in English language (B2 or equivalent) and are also expected to have a low/intermediate knowledge of Italian language, which will be improved during the first year thanks to specific Italian classes.
