

Rules of behaviour

Graduation sessions are often spoiled by episodes that go beyond normal high spirits and become bad taste, bad manners and even prosecutable behaviour. Such behaviour may be dangerous and damage School property, as well as causing annoyance to other people going about their institutional business (exams, office work, research, etc.).

Therefore, it was necessary to establish some rules of behaviour.

- The School of Engineering and Architecture is not a venue for graduation parties. This goes for indoor areas (lecture rooms, staircases, entranceways, etc.) and outdoor areas (gardens).
- Candidates are asked to limit the number of friends invited to watch the final examination. Celebrations should take place in proper places, such as restaurants or the student's own home. Safety requirements limit the number of people to be present in the School at one time.
- The room in which the graduation session has taken place must be vacated as soon as the proclamation has been made. The premises will be needed for other activities (such as further exam sessions).
- It is strictly forbidden to put up posters and other material on the School walls. Such material is often pornographic and may lead to legal consequences.
- Dangerous behaviour must be avoided.
- It is strictly forbidden to remove and misuse School equipment serving a safety requirement.
- The public are to leave the School premises by 6.30 p.m. at latest, when the last sessions usually finish.
- Visitors are not allowed into the School grounds in their cars. Cars without a parking permit may be removed at the owner's expense.
- Security guards, and School/Vice-Chairmanship personnel are authorized to report episodes and reprimand transgressors.
- Remember that the School premises are video-monitored. In case of serious bad behaviour the School will take every action to protect its property, staff and visitors.
