Academic Year 2018-19 – I semester

The School of Economics Management and Statistics at Forlì Campus offers International seminars (held in English) on specific topics with the aim to provide students with an in-depth analysis of crucial issues connected to the specific learning activities of their degree programme.

Seminars are held by International academics and they usually take place during a specific course unit. However, participation is free also for students who are not enrolled in the single course unit providing the event.
