■ Globalizzazione: e la popolazione?

Le relazioni fra demografia
e mondo globalizzato

Globalization is a huge topic. Its description has historical perspectives and ranges from economic to medical, from social to demographic issues. The aim is to reconstruct a background picture that places demography in the scenario of international relations.

Some crucial issues will be discussed:

1. The population is aging and enriching itself. Convergence often collides with delayed demographic transition.
2. The economic weight and political power are shifting towards Asia.
3. The technological revolution affects almost all aspects of society.
4. The increase in energy consumption and new production models make it difficult to manage the scarcity of resources.
5. Interdependence between countries does not go hand in hand with strengthening global governance.
