Transnational tort litigation: jurisdiction and remedies

School of law, Ravenna, Italy
Via Oberdan 1,

15-19 July 2019

Introducing the Summer School

The Department of Juridical Sciences of the University of Bologna (Italy), Ravenna Campus, has organized a Summer School on Transnational tort jurisdiction: jurisdiction and remedies, to be held in Ravenna, on July 15-19, 2019.

The relevance of tort litigation at the transnational level is growing. The diffusion of world-wide online activities and the globalisation of economic and financial activities lead to the spreading of cross-border tort disputes, which involve issues of transnational jurisdiction, private international law, remedies available to the damaged parties.

The Ravenna Summer School is specifically dedicated to these topics, with both a theoretical and a practical approach. Through traditional lectures and interactive workshop, an in-depth examination of these fundamental aspects of cross border tort litigation will be offered to the participants.

The Faculty of the Summer School is composed of U.S. and U.E. experts in this area of the law, in order to provide a comparative perspective to the participants. The Director of the School is Prof. Michele Angelo Lupoi, who teaches Civil Procedural Law and European Judicial Cooperation and is an expert in transnational civil procedure.

The U. S. perspective will be centered on procedural remedies for mass-torts (class actions) and on the assumption of jurisdiction in transnational toxic tort litigation (e. g. asbestos and tobacco tort disputes).

The E. U. part of the program will deal with Regulation n. 1215 of 2012 as concerns jurisdiction in tort claims and Regulation n. 864 of 2008, in relation to the law applicable to transnational tort disputes.

In particular, art. 7, n. 2 of Regulation n. 1215, on tort jurisdiction, will be analysed in-depth, in relation to specific areas of application (e. g. online defamation, IP litigation, economic and financial damages).

The Summer School is aimed at law students as well as law graduates and lawyers who want to obtain a specialised knowledge in this complex and fascinating area of International civil procedure.
